T. W. Watson Tenders Resignation to Council

Has Worked for Glendale in Various Capacities Since 1906—City Manager for Past Eight Years—Accepts Position With the Roy L. Kent Company

The adoption of a city charter for Glendale and the changes which have followed mark the close of an epoch for this city. Those best posted say it has been the city's most important epoch because it dealt with fundamentals. It witnessed the incorporation and thorough organization of the municipality, likewise its establishment under a city charter elastic enough to be responsive to its needs, but which stabilized its form of government.

The man who furnished the guiding hand in this evolution, who has organized the government and been the constant advocate of a city charter, last night tendered his resignation.

Adopt City Charter

In discussing his action with a friend, he said he felt he could now lay down his task without anxiety concerning the future of the city for which he has labored with such pride and ambition for its advancement. The adoption of the city charter by electors was, he felt, an indorsement of the organization he had built up to function under the charter, and an indorsement of the action of the Board of Trustees in creating the office of city manager eight years ago, which he has held ever since.

"It is gratifying," he said, "to know that the fiscal and administrative organization that has developed during this period has been embodied in this charter. A manager who takes up the work now will find the duties of his office well and clearly defined in character and will find it much easier than under a city of the sixth class, where a great deal of responsibility must be carried by a city manager rather by sufferance than by authority. In our case it was necessary because the city had outgrown the limits of the sixth class."

Municipal Building

This work of municipal building which to the general public has perhaps seemed a spontaneous thing, a natural evolution, in reality called for a man of unusual qualities, for one who had grown up with the city and loved it.

Such a man was Tom Watson. He came here from Pasadena with his parents, 37 years ago. There was no Glendale then, only a San Fernando Valley sparsely settled with farmers. Not until April, 1906, was the city incorporated and a board of trustees elected of which he was a member. During the eight years that followed he served twice as president of the board.

Solved Problems

Those were the years in which the problems of light and water service had to be solved. With the vision that has always led him forward, Mr. Watson urged municipal control and ownership. He realized when others failed to see, the economy of such ownership, and the eventual cheapening of the service when the plants should have been paid for. His counsel prevailed and the business done by the public service department last year proved the wisdom of his reasoning. Over and above all expenses the public utilities of electricity and water yielded an excess of $95,289.82 which was available for re-investment in improvements and betterments. This showing was admitted to be not only a justification of policy but a proof of efficient, economical management.

Has Working Organization

Mr. Watson says his chief ambitions for the city have been realized. It now has a working organization as efficient and well ordered as a private corporation, and in what he has done to bring this to pass he has made good in his promises to himself and the community.

"I thoroughly believe," he said, "in the city manager form of government, and the fact that I am going out of office will in no way lessen my interest in the welfare of the city. It has now reached a point where I can turn over the work to another with the assurance that it will go forward by natural evolution and unhampered by a crippling form of government.

To Build For Himself

"My friends tell me it is time for me to quit the city and begin building for Tom Watson, and I guess they are right. I expect to find great pleasure in the new organization work which Roy L. Kent has asked me to undertake for the corporation he is building to meet the demands of the big city that he and I confidently expect to see grow out of the municipality we now have."

And so it appears that Mr. Watson as well as the city is entering upon a new epoch in life, and his friends hope it will bring him rewards commensurate with what he has done for the city to which he is so loyally devoted.

Mr. Watson Receives Bouquets From Council

The expectation that the City Council would take action on the city managership at its meeting last night and name an appointee to fill the most important office in its gift, drew quite a group of citizens, curious to know what its decision would be.

Not until a long calendar of routine business had been transacted did the matter come up, and then in the form of a communication from T. W. Watson, tendering his resignation as city manager, to take effect August 29, and asking for a vacation covering the last two weeks of the month.

On motion of Councilman Davis, the resignation was accepted and the vacation granted. The motion was seconded by Councilman Lapham, who said:

Regrets Action

"I take this action with regret. I appreciate the splendid work Mr. Watson has done in the upbuilding of this city. He has the respect of every member of this council, and there has been no friction between the city manager and this council."

Councilman Clarence Kimlin expressed similar sentiments, saying:

"I, personally, and I am sure, all the members of the council, appreciate Mr. Watson's ability as city manager. I would like to see spread upon the minutes words of appreciation of what he has done for the city of Glendale. We realize the amount of work he has given the city and I feel we owe him this expression."

Friendship Exists

Councilman Dwight Stephenson added a few words, saying:

"When I first came on the Board of Trustees prior to the adoption of the city charter, Mr. Watson was a total stranger to me and as man and as a city manager. I have grown to know him as a man and as a city manager. Walk the streets of Glendale, and on practically every corner is a monument to the efficiency of Tom Watson and the interest he has displayed in this city. I have grown to appreciate Mr. Watson as a city manager. I have grown to consider him a friend and although our official relations will be severed, I hope and trust and know that the friendship which exists between myself and Tom Watson will continue."

Careful Thought

Councilman Davis, by way of explanation, said:

"The conclusion to offer the motion I just made was reached after careful thought. I think it is for the best interests of Glendale. I have the greatest respect for Mr. Watson and assure him there is nothing but the best of feeling behind what we are doing."

Mayor Spencer Robinson made no speech but said:

"When I first came to Glendale fifteen years ago, I met Mr. Watson. We have been friends ever since, and we are going to continue to be such until one of us 'goes west.'"

The motion was then put by the mayor and carried by unanimous vote.

Appoint New Manager

A few moments later, Councilman Stephenson moved that William H. Reeves be appointed city manager of the city of Glendale. The motion was seconded by Councilman Kimlin and carried, all voting aye.

On motion of Councilman Kimlin, the council then instructed the city attorney to draft an amendment to the salary ordinance fixing the salary of the city manager at $350 a month.

Watson Bids Farewell

The following statement by retiring City Manager T. W. Watson, was given out today:

I desire to say that it has been a pleasure to serve with you and with your predecessors, the several Boards of Trustees. You have my best wishes personally and I pledge you my loyal support and cooperation as a citizen of Glendale.

To Department Heads and Employees:

I desire to say that whatever measure of success has attended our efforts has been largely due to your efficiency and cooperation.

To the Incoming City Manager:

I congratulate you upon your appointment by the Council to the office of City Manager of Glendale, and pledge you my support in every effort that you may put forth in service to the city. I thoroughly believe in the City Manager form of Municipal Government.

MORE SCHOOL ROOMS ARE NEEDED HERE SAYS BOARD

The need of additional buildings to cope with a steadily increasing school attendance, is seen in the decision of the Board of Education at their meeting last night, to call together the building committee of the city schools, August 18, to outline a new bond election program.

Since the original plans of the building committee in regard to a bond election were set over from April 7 to a later date, it has been decided that residents of the Grand View district may vote as a part of Glendale. It is also understood that the value of taxable property within the Glendale school district is now in excess of $13,000,000.

The building committee consists of 20 members, of which Oliver Clark is chairman. Ten of them have been selected from the various districts of the city, while the balance are representative of Parent-Teacher associations.

Bid Awarded

A contract for athletic materials was awarded to the Neale & Gregg Hardware company, on the basis of bids. The expenditure will be $365.61. This will cover the cost of athletic equipment for the first semester.

No action was taken on the matter of supplying transportation for the pupils of the Verdugo and Grand View districts to Glendale schools. R. D. White, superintendent of schools, and Willard D. Learned, of the Grand View district, have been authorized to ascertain the cost of such transportation.

Mark Kepple, county superintendent of schools, in a communication read at the board meeting last night, recommended that the board pay the cost of transportation for a pupil only in the event that cost exceeded 10 cents.

To Carry Children

The Glendale and Montrose railway has agreed to transport children from and to the Verdugo district at 5 cents a round trip. The Pacific Electric would charge 15 cents a round trip to Glendale from the Grand View district, according to their communication to the Board of Education.

An offer from E. O. Fitz to purchase three acres of school land on Maple avenue near Verdugo road at $1500 an acre, paying $1000 cash, was rejected by the board. A cash payment will be asked in the event of a sale.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Thatcher, who manage the cafeteria at Intermediate, have been authorized to select their own employes for the coming year.

TEAR BOMBS FOR MOBS

(By International News Service)

DETROIT, Aug. 12.—Tear gas bombs will become part of the equipment of the Detroit Police, Commissioner Inches announces.

The gas produces a temporary but violent crying spell, which doctors have declared harmless.

The gas irritates the mucous membrane of the mouth and nose and causes the tears to flow.

"I believe these tear bombs will assist in quelling mobs," said Dr. Inches, "and will also be useful in capturing the man who barricades himself and then invites the police to come and get him. The bomb could be tossed through a window."

Reeves of Pasadena Is Now City Manager

New Official Expresses Admiration of the Work of Thomas W. Watson, His Predecessor in Office—Was Construction Engineer During Late War

WILLIAM H. REEVES
Newly Elected City Manager

The joy of work for work's sake, permeates the personality of W. H. Reeves, elected city manager, last night by the city council.

For Mr. Reeves is an engineer first, last, and foremost. As such, he revels in work. And again, as a hard worker, he entered the office filled with admiration for the good work of Tom Watson, and grateful for the thorough organization of affairs that he is heir to.

From the motor transportation and hurried camp construction to the civic construction of the more peaceful Glendale, is a big transition for a fighting engineer, but it all spells construction and it is one to an engineer.

Ahead of the city he sees work in sewer construction, good careful work, work that would delight the heart of any engineer. He sees ahead the water problem, more water and still more water, ahead of a city just finding its strength, its growth, and expanding with the virility of youth, and like youth, always athirst.

Opportunity of City

Then he has visions of an expanding industrial center, with big payrolls all contributing to the upgrowth of the city and to the prosperity of

Priest's Murder Is Laid on Hightower

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—William Hightower, baker, cook, explosive expert, inventor, business man and poet—man of mystery—now accused of a most brutal murder, apparently slept well last night.

He retired early, complained of the noise until about 9 o'clock, then he went to sleep.

Today police made an intensive search for "the foreigner," believed to have been Hightower's accomplice. He, the police believe, is the man who called at the Colma parish house and persuaded Father Heslin to go to his death.

It was learned today that the police have in their possession a letter written by Hightower to Dolly Mason on August 10. This letter is expected to have an important bearing on the case.

From Bakersfield came the story of Hightower as a business man and inventor. There he owned at one time two bakeries. During the world war he succeeded in interesting a committee of citizens in a machine gun invention.

Letter to Girl

Here is the letter Hightowner wrote the Mason woman on August 10:

"Dear Miss Dolly—I believe there is something to what that drunk said. I know what he meant by the chap frying hot cakes, and I found two caved-in places, but not caves, and something is or has been buried there, for the sand is loose as ashes. If it is a booze cache we will get it as soon as the hunt for the priest dies down so it will be safe.

"I am beginning to think it might have something to do with the priest, anyway. Try to remember all the things he said and watch for him. His talk about killing a man and that big black pistol may not be booze talk at all, for I found an empty .45 shell at the place. See me at once, as there is a reward offered.

(Signed) "W. A. HIGHTOWER."

"Ethel's funeral Tuesday afternoon. Wire if you can come," it read and was signed by his sister-in-law, Laura McClain.

DID PADRE EXEMPLIFY CHRIST?

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—Was Father Patrick Heslin forced to walk to his grave over the windswept sand dunes of Salada Beach, bearing a heavy plank across his shoulders, his arms outstretched? Did he thus follow his Master's example?

This question was being asked today following the finding on the cliff below his grave of a long, jagged plank, on which were two loops of heavy fish-line large enough to accommodate a man's arms and at about that distance apart. This piece of planking had evidently been thrown from the shelf where the grave had been dug.

Dr. W. A. Brooke, coroner of San Mateo county, determined today following an autopsy that Father Heslin was killed by a blow on the head. It was also determined from the position of bruised and swollen muscles along the base of the cranium that the blow was probably struck while the body was in a stooping position, the head bent forward. This caused detectives to believe that the blow may have been struck while the priest was at prayer. The shots apparently were fired into the body to make sure of his death.

DAMAGED

REDUCTION OF ARMS WOULD BENEFIT JAPANESE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Of the nations which will gather around the table on November 11 to discuss disarmament Japan, as a nation, has the most to gain financially, it is indicated in unofficial figures gathered here and made public today.

Despite this evidence Japan has been the leading objector to the procedure, although on the face of the figures referred to the Japanese have everything to gain and nothing to lose by an economy programme; for, in spite of the comparatively enormous increase in that country's prosperity during the war, Japan is staggering today under an armament programme which still is short of what the Japanese "junkers" would like to have it. There are strong reasons, however, for not only showing prudence in attempting to compete with other nations in an armament race, but in Japan endeavoring to secure from the other nations an agreement to discontinue the present schedule.

One reason is that it costs the Japanese subject just eight times as much to maintain his navy as it does the American citizen to carry his ships along, according to the unofficial figures gathered here.

According to these figures, based on population, earning power and expenditure, the percentage of "relativity" of the naval burden over carrying capacity is, in the United States, 1; Great Britain 1.9, or nearly double America's unit, and Japan, 7.7 per cent, or nearly eight times what it cost the individual American.

The population of the United States is 105,000,000; Great Britain, 45,000,000, and Japan, 56,000,000. In this connection, the statistics reveal, the cost of the British navy is borne entirely by the British Isles and not by contributory colonies. The average annual earnings per capita of these countries are: United States, $2,000; Great Britain, $1,600, and Japan $400. The total annual earnings are: United States, $70,000,000,000; Great Britain, $27,200,000,000; and Japan, $8,000,000,000. Of these earnings the proportionate expenditure is .6 by the United States; Great Britain, 1.1, and Japan 4.5 per cent.

This proportionate expenditure out of the annual earnings, divided over the several populations, increases or decreases with the number of people in the country; thus accounting for the actual cost per person.

WATSON ACCEPTS NEW POSITION

T. W. Watson, who resigned as city manager of Glendale yesterday, has been offered and has accepted an appointment with the Roy L. Kent company, as manager of a new department to be added to its fast-growing business.

When approached in regard to the matter, Mr. Kent said:

"This department will specialize in and handle nothing but business properties in Glendale, and, when fully organized, will have complete information on every such piece of property in the city. It will put us in a position to render a distinct service to anyone interested in any way in business locations.

"Mr. Watson was selected for this place because of his proven ability as an executive and manager, as evidenced by his many years of successful experience in charge of city affairs here in Glendale. To those who have had the pleasure and opportunity of witnessing Mr. Watson in action as city manager of this municipality, he has given proof of his sinceriy, integrity and pronounced ability as a business man and city builder.

"Since A. L. Baird was placed in charge of the real estate and insurance department, this concern has handled a large volume of business and has made a record in fire and automobile insurance that is hard to beat.

"Mr. Baird and Mr. Watson, together with their assistants, will endeavor to build up a business that will merit the confidence of all men.

LET HENRY DO IT

(By International News Service)

HART, Mich., Aug. 12.—Henry Ford will run the railroads running through Hart if the citizens of this place and vicinity have their way about it.

A petition, signed by 400 fruit growers, has been forwarded to President Harding, asking that the railroads of Hart County be turned over to the Detroit automobile manufacturer. The petition was circulated by fruit growers dissatisfied with present freight rates.

After pointing out the 20 per cent reduction in rates on Mr. Ford's Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad recently, the petition states the belief of the petitioners that Mr. Ford would operate the roads for the benefit of all and not for personal gain.

FOOTLOOSE LIQUOR

(By International News Service)

FITZGERALD, Ga., Aug. 12.—Moonshine whiskey, market easier; "Footloose" variety, 75c per pint. This is the latest quotation reported to Chief of Police Charles F. Dixon by George Jordan, a negro, who dropped a pint bottle of corn liquor. It was broken and spread olfactory evidence of the presence of the forbidden distillation, which was detected by the chief standing nearby. Stating he had paid seventy-five cents for the pint, the darky said:

"Yassuh," that's tol'able cheap but everything else is comin' down an' I spect liquor's gotta come down, too. Anyway, dis is footloose liquor. Don't you know what footloose liquor is? It's de kin' what ain't bolted an' boun' wif de Gov'ment seal."

VERDUGO CANYON RESERVOIR TO BE WATERPROOFED

Before putting the new reservoir, located in Verdugo canyon, into actual service it is the intention of the city to have it water proofed. A communication bearing on this subject was submitted last night to the Board of Trustees by City Manager Watson. This communication, which is self-explanatory, is as follows:

"In regards to the water-proofing of the Verdugo road reservoir. I have requested Engineer H. B. Lynch to submit to your council estimates of the cost of water-proofing the Verdugo Road reservoir with his recommendations with regards to the same. I would respectfully recommend that the reservoir be water-proofed before it is placed in commission."

The question of appropriating the funds for the application of the waterproof coating of specially prepared asphaltum to the new reservoir on Glendale avenue, brought out discussion and explanations.

Engineer Harry Lynch stated that the cost would be about $2500. When questioned relative to the amount available in the water improvement fund, Comptroller Harrison stated that there is now $8000 subject to appropriation.

Mr. Lynch declared that such a coating was not absolutely necessary but desirable, that without it the city would lose a certain amount of water probably equal to interest on the money invested. The reservoir on Vine avenue, he said, was almost water-proof, but that reservoirs elsewhere, notably at Whittier, had gone out. But there, engineers have a clay formation to deal with that shrinks and cracks.

On the assurance of Mr. Lynch that postponement of action would not delay putting the reservoir into service, the matter was referred to the committee of the whole and went over for one week.

Refers Protest of Citizens Against Dog Kennel to the City Manager

The only marked division in the vote of city council members at the meeting last night arose over an application for a permit for a rest home, and for the revoking of a permit to establish a dog kennel. Mayor Robinson, who is restive when such applications are brought before the concil, declared they are always a subject of grief and protest and on general principles he is opposed to granting them.

The discussion followed the reading of a petition signed by residents of Riverdale Drive asking the council to revoke the permit granted to J. A. Benjamin for the establishment of a dog kennel on that street, and the application of Mrs. H. E. Long for a permit to establish a rest home and sanitarium at 602 West Broadway.

New Citizen Protests

A. G. Smith, who addressed the council in support of the protest against the dog kennel permit, stated that he had recently acquired 150 feet alongside of the proposed kennels and expected to build a cottage court of eight or ten houses. He would be compelled to abandon his intention if this kennel was to be permitted. A fence six or seven feet high had been placed around the kennel site at the property line on Riverdale, he said. He had invested $25,000 to $30,000 on Riverdale drive, he declared.

On motion of Councilman Stephenson the petition was referred to the city manager for investigation and report at the next meeting.

Rest Home Undecided

In connection with the application of Mrs. Long for the rest home a communication from City Health Officer Eckles was read, approving the premises for the purpose named from a sanitary viewpoint.

Councilman Stephenson moved that the permit be granted on condition that no patients afflicted with the tuberculosis or mental disorders be received.

Mayor Robinson plead for delay until the owners of surrounding property could be heard from arguing that too precipitate action might work injustice to non-resident owners.

Councilman Stephenson replied that the city already had rest homes in various parts of the city and to deny this application would be discriminatory: that he was opposed to special privilege. The vote was then taken on the Stephenson motion and lost, Robinson, Kimlin and Lapham voting no.

AUXILIARY MEETS WITH LEGION MEN

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion will be present at an open meeting of the local Legion Post tonight at 8 o'clock, at the Legion quarters, 610 East Broadway, when efforts will be made to foster a closer relationship between the activities of the two organizations.

A special program has been prepared that should prove highly interesting to both auxiliary and legion members. Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools, will make an address narrating his experiences at the convention of the National Education Association, which he attended in July.

Two other features on the program will be a group of vocal solos by Albert K. Lewis, who made such a hit at the last post meeting, and instrumental selections by Dr. H. V. Brown.

All members of the Legion and Ladies' Auxiliary are urgently requested to be present so that matters to be taken up pertaining to both organizations may come to the attention of all members.

ICE CREAM PLANT OPENS OCTOBER 1

C. L. Morrison, 815 South Central avenue, who, for the past several years has been employed in the Roberts & Echols drug store, corner Brand and Broadway, will open an up-to-the-minute ice cream manufacturing plant at 109 North Glendale avenue. Mr. Morrison will begin dispensing ice cream in Glendale about September 15, but his new plant will not be in complete operation until about October 1.

The building to house this establishment is being constructed by Spencer Robinson, and will cost about $6000. Mr. Morrison will install machinery costing about $6000, including a freezer, mixer, brine box, etc. Everything in the way of ice cream, fancy ices, etc., will be turned out at this plant.

the merchants and land owners, who must bear the cost of the growth of the city in taxes.

Each factor looking to Glendale for accommodations, will have his service, as an engineer on the spot, ready to lay out facilities with the accuracy of an engineer in possession of his facts.

All these things he has studied as a program for the coming years. He knows they have been the dreams of his predecessor as well, and thus the program of construction and organizing the city's forces will go on uninterrupted.

A repetition of the application of Mr. Reeves and the letters of those in Pasadena who supported his candidacy tell the same story, of keeping faith as city commissioner with the taxpayers, of rugged honesty and pure intent against graft and special favoritism.

The same note of city service runs even from the letter of resignation of City Manager Tom Watson, through the letter of acceptance of the laid down position, by his successor. It is a note of purest civic loyalty of devotion to service.

Necessarily, the resignation of Mr. Watson comes first in the sequence of events.

Watson Accepts Position

Mr. Watson in addition announced that he had been offered and had accepted appointment from the Roy L. Kent Company, as manager of a new department to be added, to the fast growing concern.

This department will specialize in and handle nothing but business properties in Glendale and when fully organized will have complete information on ever piece of business property in the city, and will be in a position to render a distinct service to any one interested in any way in the business locations.

Mr. Watson had been selected by Mr. Kent for this place because of his proven ability as an executive and manager, as evidenced by his many years of successful experience in charge of the city affairs here in Glendale.

To those who have had the opportunity of witnessing Mr. Watson in action as city manager of the city, the proof has been well established of his sincerity, integrity, enthusiasm and pronounced ability as a business man and as city builder.

Since placing A. L. Baird in charge of the real estate and insurance department this concern has handled a large volume of business and has made a record in fire and automobile insurance business that is hard to beat.

Mr. Baird and Mr. Watson, together with their assistants, will endeavor to build a business that shall merit the confidence of all men.

Declares Principles

In his letter of acceptance of the position, Mr. Reeves laid his cards on the table in the following communication, a straightforward presentation, a declaration of principles:

"I am sincerely appreciative of the honor conferred upon me in my appointment as city manager of Glendale under the new charter. I come here with the city council unanimously behind me. With their support, in a live community such as this, much will be expected of me, not alone in the matter of keeping pace with the city's phenomenal growth, but further, in trying to foresee and to plan for its future development, so far as possible. To this end I shall welcome suggestions from any source. Even criticism will by no means be resented, provided only that it is constructive. Nothing hasty nor radical will be attempted. Changes will only be made after thorough investigation has demonstrated their advisability.

"I wish to take the first opportunity to commend the administration of my predecessor, Mr. Watson. The good work which he has done in Glendale will be better appreciated as time passes. I shall hope to build upon the foundation which he has so well laid.

"It is my duty and purpose to loyally endeavor to carry into effect the policies initiated by the city council, the direct representatives of the people. I hope to do this in a manner which shall command the approval and confidence of those who pay the bills.

"During the present decade I fully expect to see Glendale outstrip her sister city of Pasadena, just as was done by Long Beach in the last census period. Any part, however slight, which I may take in her future progress will be a source of pride and gratification to me."

Mr. Reeves Visits City Hall

Mr. Reeves was formally introduced to the various city officials at 10 o'clock this morning, the session taking place in the office of Judge Lowe. Former City Manager Watson introduced Mr. Reeves to his future coworkers. The various officials were introduced in the following order: J. C. Sherer, city clerk J. W. Stauffacher, city treasurer; H. A. Harrison, comptroller; J. H. Webster, purchasing agent; H. W. Hollenbeck, sanitary inspector; J. P. Lampert, chief of police; A. H. Lankford, fire chief; C. L. Hill, city engineer; L. O. Nelson, street foreman; J. F. McIntyre, commercial agent; Dr. J. E. Eckles, health officer; P. Diederich, superintendent public utilities; Mrs. L. W. Sinclair, assistant director of the welfare bureau.

Watson Asks Cooperation

In introducing Mr. Reeves, Mr. Watson said that he hoped the heads of the various departments of the city government would give the new city manager the whole-hearted support he had personally been given during the past several years. He thanked all of the officials for the cooperation they had given him and expressed the hope that the friendship which has existed between all of these men and himself may continue long after he has left the employ of the city of Glendale.

Mr. Reeves Announces Policy

In acknowledging the introduction, Mr. Reeves stated that he is a man of few words.

"My policy is to act. I am a worker, as are all of you gentlemen. Henceforth my aim will be only toward the good of Glendale. I am willing to listen to any suggestions which may be for the good of the city. But, in this work upon which I am entering, I must have the cooperation of all of you. I am sure I will receive it."

City Clerk Responds

City Clerk Sherer responded in behalf of the city officials.

"Naturally," he said, "we are sorry to see Mr. Watson leave the employ of Glendale. Some of us have known him ever since he was a boy. We have seen him grow up and with much interest have noted his progress. He has been instrumental, in a large measure, in making Glendale what she is. His efforts for the good of Glendale will certainly be missed when he leaves us.

Pledges Loyalty

"However, to a man, we will get back of the new city manager and lend to him the most valuable support of which we are able. Possibly, from time to time, each one of us can give you, Mr. Reeves, valuable information along our respective lines. If we can assist you in any way, we will be only too glad to do so."

CAMP NOT SELECTED

No decision was arrived at in regard to the selection of a Boy Scout camp, by the camp committee of that organization last night in the offices of Roy L. Kent. The Malibu mountains camp, considered favorably at first, has been set aside with a view to securing a more desirable site.

Benjamin Robison, jr., will spend the week-end inspecting a number of camp possibilities and make his report to the committee on Monday.

GLENDALE GATEWAY IS VERY THRIVING COMMUNITY

Stepper Tract Was Barley Field Five Years Ago, Now Has Beautiful Homes

Five years ago the Stepper tract in South Glendale was a barley field—today it is a thriving community of beautiful homes.

Something like fifteen years ago the piece of land consisting of about ten acres located north of Cypress street and between Brand boulevard and Central avenue was purchased by A. G. Stepper, now residing on the Ventura highway just outside the Los Angeles city limits and his brother, George Stepper, now living in Los Angeles. There was nothing on the land except a little practically worthless shack or two. There was nothing about the tract that would make the average person think that it would amount to anything but good "alfalfa land." But the Stepper brothers looked beyond the "alphalphie," way over to the time when that land would be covered with business houses and beautiful homes. In a great measure their dreams have come true. The business section is not what they hope it will some day be, but the residences are there—just oceans of them.

Stepper Starts Operations

The first work of the Stepper brothers after purchasing the property was to subdivide it, the result being 52 lots, these ranging in size from 45 to 50 foot frontage and from 150 to 170 feet in depth. Two streets were cut through the property—Walnut street running north and south, the southern end opening onto Cypress street, and Magnolia street, which runs east from Brand boulevard on the east to Central avenue on the west. Walnut is a 70-foot street, while Magnolia is 60 feet wide. Both of these streets have been improved with sidewalk, curbing and macadam roadway. This work was done at a cost of several thousand dollars.

There was not much activity in realty about that time and for a while very little was done in the way of sales. But the time came, about a year and a half ago, when things began to pick up. Along with the activity came sale after sale in the Stepper tract. Every available lot in the tract has now been taken, 32 of the lots having been sold, the remainder having been taken off the market for the time being. In prices of these lots ranged from $1,000 to $3,000, the average price paid being about $1,500.

Boosters and Home Owners

The new owners of these lots, as may also be said of the Stepper brothers, are not at all of the "mossback" order. They are boosters and prospective home owners. There is not one purchaser in the Stepper tract but who intends as soon as possible to build a home that will be of value to the community. To date fourteen homes have been constructed in this tract. These range in price from $2,000 to $7,600, the average cost of these homes being around the $3,500 figure. These dwellings are constructed of shake, siding, brick and concrete and all are modern in the extreme, many having beautiful, useful and unique built-in features and garden designs. These homes consist of four, five, six, seven and eight rooms and are homes in the true sense of the word. Many of the buyers who have not yet constructed "their" dwelling are intending to do so soon.

One of the unique features about this tract is that all of the water and gas mains were laid before the street was put in. Even stubs to these systems were laid to the various homesites. This eliminated the necessity of digging up the streets after the paving had been laid, thereby making them uneven and bumpy. The sale of 29 of these lots was made through the agency of Davenport & Strother, 219 South Brand boulevard.

There are few who have assisted in the building up of the southern part of Glendale as have the Stepper brothers. Indeed, there are few who have the ability to see into the future as did these two Glendale boosters.

OHIO GOLD STRIKE

CHILLICOTHE, O., Aug. 12.—William Smalley, of Bainbridge, and Thomas Goode, of Greenfield, have leased 150 acres of land in Bainbridge township and purpose to begin placer mining there as soon as the necessary machinery can be installed.

The alleged discovery of the yellow metal was made while hunting Indian relics in the creek bed, which adjoins the land leased. Samples of the sand were assayed, and the report was so favorable that the men decided that mining could be done profitably.

NEW LITTLE GIRL AT THE IMLERS

A wee daughter was born yesterday at the Glendale sanitarium to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Imler of Bakersfield.

Mr. Imler and his mother, Mrs. Adelaide H. Imler, 336 West Park avenue, share equally in the name selected for the little lady, which is Adelaide Jeanne.

Mrs. Eugene Imler has been the guest of her mother-in-law for the past two months, her husband coming down on short visits. He is in the employ of the Standard Oil company at Bakersfield.

Hard times were relieved in China by giving the idle employment on national roads. How primitive and—or effective.

COAST LEAGUE NOW WONDERING OVER THE SENATORS

The close of the eighteenth week of the Pacific Coast league showed plenty "doings." The Seals got one of the worst "bumps" they have met up with this season, while one or two of the other clubs showed a disposition to get into the going. A question being asked is; "Just what is the matter with the Senators? Are they being bludgeoned out of the race. Certainly they are in a precarious position at the moment and they will have to get an instant hold on themselves."

The standings are as follows:

1921	W	L	Pct
San Francisco	79	49	617
Seattle	70	52	574
Los Angeles	68	53	562
Oakland	68	56	549
Sacramento	69	57	548
Vernon	67	60	527
Salt Lake	44	79	358
Portland	31	90	256

At no previous time have the possibilities been so uncertain as they were with the close of last week and we may look for almost any distribution of the teams in the next four weeks, with a fine chance of a couple of distinct reversals.

San Francisco Leadership

San Francisco's past history as a club is pockmarked with periods of bad slumps and this fact must not be overlooked as a prospect in the immediate future. There is no question that the time has come when the managers of the competing teams are going to make life as uncomfortable as possible for the Seals' manager. Seven weeks remain of this season with the close of the present series, and now is the interval in which the 1921 pennant may be won and lost. It is fair to assume that, at the present time, the race may be awarded to any of the first six teams. A slump now on the part of a leader is likely to send him down and out of the running.

We have failed yet to see that any of the sports writers have picked out the winning team. It would be a hazardous thing to do. Seattle and Sacramento are excellent examples of what can happen in the course of a couple of series. Those two teams have swapped places in the standings. It is well within the realm of possibility that they might swap back again.

By winning its series last week, the Portlanders marred an unblemished record of consecutive weeks extending over a period of ten series when they were always on the short end.

Even Portland, which can by no stretch of the imagination be counted anything more than a cellar or next to cellar team can, during the remaining weeks that have much to do with the ultimate rating among the leaders. Of course, all hands are counting on the Beavers as the best little stepping stones toward the pennant, but they can do something in the way of vindicating their very miserable record of this year by injecting themselves into the consideration of the battling clubs.

Lane Steals Bases

In last Sunday's game, Lane of Seattle stole two bases against Sacramento, these being the first bags stolen by the former league burglar since July 13. This brings Lane total to 32 pilfered bags while Pick of Sacramento leads the list with 33. Crawford of Los Angeles and McGaffigan of Sacramento are tied with Lane for second place.

MORE GRAND VIEW TERRITORY SEEKS TO ENTER CITY

One of the most interesting matters brought up before the City Council last night was a formal notice from eleven residents of the district north and west of the Grand View district, extending to the Burbank line, of an intention to circulate a petition for annexation to Glendale.

It was presented by J. R. Gray, and was received with expressions of gratification by councilmen, and Attorney W. E. Evans, who was substituting for City Attorney Show, submitted a resolution which was formally adopted, acknowledging receipt of the notice and approving the circulation of such a petition.

One of the council members later explained, unofficially, that this action was taken to forestall a similar movement in Burbank, as the city, he stated, desired to annex the territory, and the majority of the residents desired it to be a part of Glendale.

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC AFFAIRS

Americans had a first-hand opportunity to observe British politics at work when the British embassy at Washington suddenly cancelled a dinner scheduled in honor of Lord Northcliffe, British publisher, who is visiting in this country. It was, apparently, the result of the bitter political battle between the publisher and Lord Curzon, secretary of foreign affairs. Northcliffe has been severely criticizing Lloyd-George and Curzon and a change in the Lloyd-George ministry is not an impossibility.

A curious weakness of popular government would be demonstrated by an overthrow of the ministry immediately following the disarmament conference called by President Harding. The political situation in England is summed up in the following paragraph from a London correspondent:

"In considering the political outlook with relation to the Washington conference, serious thought should be given to the possibility of a fall of our government, which, if it occurs, will be due to prolonged extravagance, the magnitude of national expenditure having wearied the public, and also to a split in the Unionist section with regard to the government's present Irish policy. Reports of drastic cutting of expenditure by the Washington government attract attention and command approval here."

Why this condition presents a weakness in popular government is shown in the above paragraph. The foreign policy of England is dependent on the domestic policies. If Lloyd-George, who will come to America to draft a foreign policy, is beaten, it will be because of local reasons and not because of his part in the conference. And yet, of what will it avail the United States to arrange an agreement with Premier Lloyd-George and then witness his defeat in a brief time?

The identical condition prevails in this country. To quote the Des Moines Register, a Republican newspaper, "President Wilson was beaten not because of the Paris conference, nor because of the League of Nations, but because there was a determined purpose here at home not to have another Democratic administration of domestic affairs." Thus was the United States thrown out of the world's political affairs for two years because of purely domestic problems.

It is plain that, in some way, the delegates who meet at Washington to take part in the disarmament conference should be able to enter into some sort of an international program that will be accepted by their countries without regard to the ups and downs of domestic affairs. No lasting world program can be outlined and followed through unless the statesmen are freed from the possibilities of political campaigns at home defeating them while they are in the midst of their work.

To observe this unhappy condition is more simple than to supply the remedy, but the time has come when all peoples must pay greater attention to foreign affairs, and an honest effort should be made to keep foreign and domestic affairs separate.

Perhaps pedestrians would step a little more lively if there was a jazz attachment on the exhaust pipes of motors.

A cynic is one who thinks the international traffic law requires nations to turn to the right as a last resort.

Man is endowed with certain inalienable rights, and he is lucky if he gets the interest on the endowment.

Congress has a pet alligator with a remarkable snap. Perhaps he will teach Congress to make it snappy.

It will seem more like the road back to normalcy when it is filled with moving crops.

GRAVE AND GAY

A small boy was taken to see the new baby, whom he eyed very critically.

"Why, he's got no hair, father," was his first remark.

The fact was admitted.

"And he's got no teeth, father," was the next comment.

The circumstances could not be denied.

"I tell you what, father," was the final observation, "you've been swindled, he's an old 'un."

The Drunk — Morgue, James, the morgue!

Lady to Conductor—You will have to trust me. I forgot my purse. I am one of the directors' wives.

Conductor—I'm sorry, but I couldn't do that even if you were the director's only wife.

"Mable," said her father sternly, "who was here in the parlor with you last evening?"

"Why—why—er—Myrtle was here for a while, father," stammered Mabel.

"Well, you will please tell Myrtle for me that she left her pipe on the top of the piano."

An inquisitive neighbor who has an inordinate fondness for gossip recently overheard the daughter of an acquaintance talking about affairs in her home that seemed to have a spicy smack.

"What was that you said, Alberta?" she inquired.

"I was talking about papa and mamma."

"Yes—"

"And I said papa beat mamma up the other morning."

"Did he, indeed?"

"Yes, he did."

"Well, what did he beat her up with?"

"With an alarm clock?"

"Ah, did your papa hit your mamma with the clock?"

"No, indeed; my papa never hits my mamma."

"Then, what do you mean when you say he beat her up the other morning?"

"Mamma usually gets up first, but papa wanted to go fishing and he set the clock so he could beat her up in the morning."

"O-o-o-oh!"

Home Pickle

"She has threatened to can me the next time I sit in an all night poker game."

Excused

"Tell Mr. Fontaine the doctor is here."

"I'm sorry, sir, but my employee is suffering terribly and can't receive anyone today."

Senator Willis of Ohio met Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi outside the main door of the Senate. The Ohio senator was just entering, the Mississippian just going out. "Senator," said the Ohioan, "I wish you would stay in the chamber. How will I know how to vote unless you are here? When I hear you vote 'aye' I know I should vote 'no,' and when you vote 'no' I can vote 'aye' without paying any more attention to what is up."

"Father," said a little boy thoughtfully, as he watched his parent collect his notes and arrange the slides for a parish entertainment, "why is it that when you spend your holidays in the Holy Land you always give a lantern lecture? You never do when you have been to Paris."

Art Criticism

Arthur, age nine, returned from his first visit to the John Herron Art Institute with such a depressed air that his mother was puzzled.

"Didn't you like it, dear?"

"Not much. Mostly there were people with their heads cut off."

"But there must have been some pictures of animals and trees and lovely country."

"Oh, a few, but," in disgust, "there were more of people doing things they shouldn't."

"Things they shouldn't?"

"Yes, some of them had taken off all their clothes, even their union suits."

A Suggestion

Customer—"I wish to select a birthday present for my husband, and I really can't think of anything to buy. He doesn't smoke, nor drink, nor go out nights, nor play cards."

Salesman—(Hoping to make a helpful suggestion)—"Is he fond of fancy-work, madam?"

Technical Terms

"Slipovers, try-ons, tuck-ins, tie-backs and step-ins are already thoroughly familiar to our fortunately gentle readers, and yesterday we saw a girl engaged in trying to cover herself up a little better after assumming a sitting posture who, in addition to having on all these things, we suppose, seemed to be wearing a 'jerk down and pull-up,' raves the impertinent and irreverent Ohio State Journal paragrapher, who has evidently been peeking into subjects which are taboo to the male biped. What it is all about, we can merely guess.

Diplomatic Willie

"Don't you know it is against the law to beg for money?"

"I wasn't goin' to beg for no money, ma'am."

"It's just as bad to beg for bread."

"I wasn't goin' to beg for on bread, ma'am."

"What were you going to beg for then, pray?"

"Only for one o' your photographs, ma'am."

If congress wishes to encourage the buying public, it might monetize tax receipts.

His Ideal

"Don't you wish you was a bird, Jimmy, and could fly up in the sky?" mused little Jean dreamily.

"Naw!" scorned Jimmy. "I ruther be a elephant and squirt water through my nose."

Another Bird Almost Extinct

Jasper: "Scientists are now trying to explain their theories so that the man in the street can understand them."

Gasper, (dodging an automobile): "Well, they'll have to hurry up. The man in the street will soon be extinct."

WOMAN'S COZY CORNER

By JOSEPHINE FRANCE

Finance for Women

A popular form of railroad bond is known as "Car Trust Certificates" or "Equipment Bonds." These bonds carry excellent security and usually mature serially. They are generally issued for about 85 per cent of the rolling stock for which they are to pay, and a very important point to consider in the case of this character of bond is the sinking fund provided for the serial retirement.

Bonds of this character virtually come ahead of the bonds of the railroad itself, as they are a direct lien on the equipment and property vital to the operation of the road. They are a strong security, and it is a known fact that when railroads were in default upon their first mortgage bonds the holders of car trust bonds were paid in full.

"Terminal Bonds" are issued by a railroad against its terminal properties, secured by the real estate holdings. Terminal properties are usually located in the heart of important cities, and they increase in value as a real estate investment, irrespective of the earning power of the road itself.

The history of terminal bonds is parallel to that of equipment trust certificates. The terminal is as essential to the operation of a railroad as its equipment, and therefore the record of terminal bonds is of the best. Interest on such bonds is known to have been paid when the interest on other railroad bonds has defaulted. They are generally considered a very high-grade security.

Future is Bright

"Collateral Trust Bonds" should be considered with reference to the securities against which the bonds are issued. There is a chance, of course, that these might suffer deterioration in market value.

We recall that in the early days of the war our railroads were going through very serious difficulties, especially with labor. A labor conference called by Mr. Wilson in 1917 resulted in a large increase in wages given the men, and that, together with the congested character of the traffic, due to the war, made it almost impossible for the roads to make any sort of a showing. These were extenuating circumstances to be sure.

The Government needed the roads to help win the war, which then was the paramount issue. The Interstate Commerce Commission has permitted an increase in passenger as well as freight rates, and under the Esch-Cummings bill the railroads must be allowed more than 5½ per cent of their total funded debt and total capital stock. Conditions today are quickly adjusting themselves, and the future of most of the roads looks encouraging and bright.

We might add a word regarding public utility bonds. Investment securities of this character have had a substantial growth in importance. They are the obligations of companies supplying communities with water, gas, electric light, heat, power, street railway transportation, telephone service, etc.—all essentials to the life and prosperity of our communities. Conservative investors are paying increased attention to this class of bond.

Variety Adds Security

By exercising the proper principles of discrimination it is possible to purchase utility bonds—or power bonds—that offer a combination of safety of principal and liberal interest yield. The business of a public utility is practically on a cash basis; inventories to be marked down are negligible; rates and fares have been very generally increased; earnings are stable during periods of depression, and as commodity prices decline operating expenses are reduced.

In everyday life we are all prone to errors. I, therefore, think it appropriate to make a few suggestions to women who may be planning to make initial investments and to warn against pitfalls awaiting the unwary.

Principal unduly risked in expectation of huge income. Principal is too readily lost, with years of endeavor and self-denial needed to recoup.

Variety of investments adds to security of holdings. Don't put all your eggs in one basket.

Buying securities on the statement that the price may go up.

The present rate of interest obtainable on well-secured investments doubles principal at compound interest in ten to fifteen years.

Buying on margin is pure and simple speculation: it is not investing. One cut of a thousand may successfully guess market fluctuatinos.

Invest only on a basis of safety.

Friendships and relationships very often wreck fortuneships. Moral: Mingle your judgment, based on clear understanding, with that of your adviser.

Spend prudently, save systematically, invest wisely.

STUDIO NEWS AND GOSSIP

Doris May, now star, has started work on "The Foolish Age," at the new Robertson-Cole studio in Los Angeles. Otis Harlan, well-known comedian is in the supporting cast.

Rose Dione has a principal role in "Mam'selle Jo," an adaptation from the novel of the same name by Harriet T. Comstock. Louis Gasnier is the directing genius.

Pauline Frederick was the guest of honor Frontier Week at Cheyenne, Wyoming. Her next picture, about to start will be known as "The Lure of Jade."

Gloria Swanson, in her latest starring picture, "Under the Lash," has the role of a South African Boer farmer. The story is an adaption from the novel success, "The Shumalite."

Mildred Davis, soon to become a star, was born within sound of the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia.

Charlie Chaplin's latest picture, "The Idle Class," just completed, is said to be the funster's most meritorious offering, with the opssible exception of "The Kid"

Max Linder, according to a veracious press agent, was the vaulting champion of Southwest France at the age of sixteen.

Lila Lee has a dual role, her first, in "Freight Prepaid," a Paramount picture starring Roscoe Arbuckle. She plays a rather ingenuous and totally unsophisticated country maiden and an up-to-the-minute city girl—distinct contrasts.

Lorna Moon wrote the story for "Don't Tell Everything," a Paramount picture now being filmed with Gloria Swanson, Wallace Reid and Elliott Dexter in the principal roles.

Ralph Graves, former Griffith player, will have the leading role in "The Kindred of the Dust." He is six feet one inch in height, and has brown hair and blue eyes.

Sonia Levine's story, "The Heart of Youth," will be Constance Binney's first Realart picture on the West Coast. "The Heritage of Dedlow Marsh," by Bert Harte, has been temporarily shelved.

Viola Dana, Metro star, is due for a time with bullfrogs in her current picture, "The Fourteenth Lover." The scenario calls for bullfrogs and Viola insists that they shall be the real article.

Milton Sills, Florence Vidor, Tully Marshall and Marcia Manon have the principal roles in "Lucky Damage," a Thomas H. Ince picture soon to be released by Associated Producers, probably under another title. Perilous and spectacular airplane stunts feature the closing scenes.

Glendale Chapter of the American Red Cross is planning an intensive campaign for used clothes for shipment to needy persons in Central and Eastern Europe. This phase of the foreign production program is being conducted in cooperation with the American Friends Service Committee.

Nation-wide appeal for contributions of used clothing is being made through The Saturday Evening Post, The Ladies Home Journal, and the Country Gentleman, in which prospective donors are instructed to get in touch with the nearest Red Cross representative or Chapter.

The call is for all kinds of warm and serviceable clothing in good condition, or for materials out of which to make garments. The local Chapter will receive contributions during August, and every interested citizen in Glendale is urged to remember that some garment he can do without may be just THE garment that will save the life of some suffering child. Garments for all ages are badly needed. They should be clean and in good repair.

Distribution is made in Czecho-Slovakia, Austria, Hungary, Poland, the Balkan and Baltic States, by the American Red Cross, through its Child Welfare Units, and other distribution machinery, and in Poland, Austria, Germany and Russia, by the American Friends Service Committee. Working in close cooperation in the countries in which both organizations are active, their representatives are careful to avoid duplication of effort.

Clothing may be left at the fire stations on East Broadway and Los Feliz road, and also at 347 North Brand Boulevard.

MRS. H. E. BARTLETT,
Chairman.

MENAGERIE BREAKS OUT ON STEAMER

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The Elder Dempster steamship Elmina was berthed at Liverpool this week with a distracting sideshow in full swing.

On board was an interesting selection of beasts sent by the Governor of Gambia, West Africa, as present to the London "Zoo."

Two hyenas formed part of the consignment. These had already been loose once during the passage, and they repeated the escapade in the Mersey. The theory is that some youthful spirits enjoyed the first incident so much that they arranged for a repition before they left the ship.

Pitchforks were employed to urge the beasts back to their den. The officers never had a dull moment while the dual operation of berthing ship and big game hunting was in progress.

Some regrets were expressed (not among the ship's officers) that the porcupines and ostriches were not given an airing at the same time.

In addition to this, the passengers took great interest during the voyage in the menagerie, and several still bore souvenirs in the shape of scratches when the vessel docked.

SEEN IN MISSOURI

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Aug. 12.—It's shake time in southeast Missouri, according to James Hendrickson, newspaper correspondent.

Hendrickson was browsing around the new-mown hay after a "story." A peculiar noise attracted his attention. He turned around and looked squarely into the face of a "blue racer" snake. Hendrickson "breezed" swiftly away. He stopped two hundred yards away, wiped the perspiration from his brow and turned around. As if smiling, Hendrickson relates, the snake was again looking up at him. When the correspondent climbed a tree the snake ambled away.

COLORADO BOY, THIRTEEN, CAUSING CRACK GOLFERS AMAZEMENT; SHOT IN 78

(By International News Service)

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Aug. 12.—This sun-tanned boy of 13 is causing crack golfers of Colorado Springs to sit up and take notice with his remarkable play on local links.

He is Homer Joy, Jr., son of Dr. Homer Joy of New York City.

Young Joy began playing golf at the age of 7 at Morristown, N. J., and Quogue, L. I. He holds the course record at the Redlands, Cal., links, where the family maintain a winter home, having shot that difficult course in 78.

The Joys are spending the summer in Colorado Springs, and the lad, who already has surprised veteran players with his phenomenal drives and putts, is to be matched with some of the best local players.

Passing the Buck

Axel, a Swede in an outfit at Fort Jay, woke up one morning with a desire to loaf. He got put on sick-call, thinking it was worth trying, anyway. At the dispensary, the doctor looked him over, felt his pulse and took his temperature. Then he said:

"I can't find anything wrong with you."

No answer.

"See here, what's wrong with you, anyway?"

"Doc," replied Axel, "that bane your yob!"

TOWN OF HAPPINESS

LONDON, Aug. 12—Navestock, in Essex, claims to be the happiest village in England.

At the annual village fete one of the features was a competition for a gammon of bacon for the happiest married couple.

But every married pair in the town entered for the competition and claimed the prize, and the committee got out of the dilemma only by withdrawing the competition and issuing an apology in which they alluded to the difficulty in coming to a decision in what was apparently "the happiest village in England."

PEOPLE OF PACIFIC AVENUE DEMAND MORE STREETS

The first to address the City Council at its meeting last night under the head of oral communications was Alexander Mitchell, of the newly annexed Pacific Avenue District.

He explained the desire of residents of Tract No. 1576 which contains twenty acres and lies west of the Evans & Huntley tract, to have its streets improved and to have the work commenced before the winter rains. The streets, he stated, had been duly plated and recorded but had never been dedicated, and he understood it would be necessary for the city to acquire title by deeds from the owners of the property before proceedings could be commenced under the Vrooman Act or the Act of 1911.

W. E. Evans, who was substituting for City Attorney Shaw, absent on a vacation, stated that no action could be taken until the city had secured title, which he thought could be done by means of one deed signed by all the property owners who, Mr. Mitchell thought, would number thirty or more. On his recommendation City Engineer Hill was instructed to prepare a deed containing an accurate description of the land to be conveyed, and to turn same over to Mr. Mitchell to secure the necessary signatures.

The question of who shall pay for a certificate of title to accompany said deed, the city or the property owners, was referred to the committee of the whole.

WEST CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

A beautifully appointed dinner was given Thursday evening at the home of W. F. West, 338 West Garfield avenue, in celebration of his birthday. Elk street, their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carpenter of West Burchette street; and the host and hostess. Following the dinner Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Roake, of 342 West Garfield street, joined the group and a pleasant evening was spent over the card tables.

Shasta daisies and coreopsis were used by the hostess in the decoration of the living room, her table being centered with four-leaved clovers. A conspicuous feature of the board was a very large and handsome birthday cake decorated with pink rosebuds.

It was a foregone conclusion when Mrs. Roy L. Kent invited ladies of the First Baptist Church to meet at her home Thursday afternoon for a get-together party that the attendance would be good, because everybody enjoys the affairs that good hostess gives. No set program had been provided but during the afternoon readings were given by Miss Nellie Rowe, there were piano numbers by Mrs. George Adams and songs by Mrs. Arnold of Long Beach. The hope of the hostess to promote acquaintance was realized.

COUNCIL DECIDES TO IMPROVE SEVERAL CITY STREETS

Both Doran and Orange District Projects Approved. Grant Many Permits

All members of the City Concil were present at the regular meeting in the City Hall last night, but City Attorney Hartley Shaw was absent on vacation and in his place sat W. E. Evans, who preceded Mr. Shaw in the city attorneyship, acting for Mr. Shaw.

One of the matters which came before the council early in the session was a petition signed by W. C. Jennings and four other property owners in the Todd Tract, asking for action on the part of the city to compel the improvement of West Salem street. It was explained that the majority of the property owners had entered into an arrangement with Edwards & Wildey for the improvement of the street under private contract, but that W. C. and W. R. Zellner had refused to join.

Attorney Evans stated that the city could not intervene and start proceedings for the improvement of a street frontage covering only two lots. On his recommendation the city manager was instructed to notify Mr. Jennings and his associates on the petition that the city could only institute a proceeding which would cover the whole street.

San Fernando Fair

A communication from officers of the San Fernando Valley Fair to open September 13, requested the city to furnish two officers at that time, a motorcycle cop and a special officer to patrol the fair grounds. The request was granted.

Many Permits Granted

Other permits granted were for the establishment of machinery to manufacture ice cream at 109 North Glendale avenue; for an auto service station and garage at 208-10 West Broadway; to M. Hainbridge for permit to do street work by private contract under approval of street superintendent and similar permit to Claud E. Tuttle on Wilson avenue. Also permit to B. G. Jackson for installation of gas engine and garage at 1600 South San Pedro road.

City Manager's Recommendations

The recommendatiin of City Manager Watson that the appointment of H. A. Harrison as city comptroller be continued for sixty days, was adopted by unanimous vote. His recommendation that a transcript of proceedings in connection with the voting of $26,000 bond issue June 255 be sent to Attorney Arthur Tompson, the new York bond expert, was also adopted and the city attorney was so instructed.

Street Improvements

Petitions for the improvement of Doran, Everett, Geneva and Lexington Drive which were considered at the last meeting were again brought up. The city manager had been instructed to consult members of the Board of Education to ascertain if they were prepared to stand the expense of improving the school frontage.

In accordance with the report and recommendations of the city manager, the council voted to start proceedings for the improvement of the streets named, leaving out of the assessment district the school property and omitting the streets abutting on the school property.

On motion of Stephenson the council voted to institute proceedings for the improvement of Orange street between Lexington and Milford, and to include this in proceedings now being prepared for the improvement of Milford street, in accordance with recommendations made by the city manager, August 4.

Ordinances

An ordinance was introduced for the abandonment of proceedings for the opening and improvement of Patterson avenue.

The ordinance making obligatory the cleaning of lots by owners introduced at a previous meeting, was adopted.

City Clerk Sherer reported no protests received against the proposed change of grades on Milford and Doran streets and Lexington Drive, and ordinance prepared by Attorney Shaw ordering change was introduced by Councilman Lapham.

Action on ordinance for the installation of sewers in the business district was postponed until certain assessments could be secured from property owners.

An ordinance establishing the grade of Orange Grove avenue introduced by Councilman Kimlin was laid over for one week.

Office Seekers

Two applications for office were received. One from Ralph R. Newman, together with indorsements for the office of City Engineer's assistant was filed for future reference. The application of F. E. Doty for the office of Chief of Police was referred to the city manager.

WORLEYS AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Worley returned to their home, 341 North Jackson street, after an extended trip of several weeks. Their itinerary took them north up the coast and brief stops were made at San Francisco, Portland and Seattle. From the city last named they journeyed east to Glacier National Park where they spent nearly three weeks, thoroughly exploring it on horseback with their own guide, crossing the national divide twice. Much of the country they saw, which was very beautiful, is seldom visited by tourists.

After leaving the park they went to Salt Lake City to join Dr. and Mrs. E. Leslie Eames when they came out of Yellowstone. A few days were spent there in sight-seeing. The final tour of their outing was to Lake Tahoe from which they have just arrived.

EASTERN STAR PICNIC

The Order of Eastern Star will hold a meeting tonight at the Masonic Temple, at 8 o'clock. Tomorrow at 4:30, on the island in Echo park lake, the organization will hold a picnic. Every member and members of their families will be cordially welcome.

OFFICES FILLED BY VETERANS AND AUXILIARY

Mrs. Priscilla Houdyshel of North Orange street has just returned from Santa Monica, where she has been the past ten days, attending the Southern California Veterans' association and the Women's Auxiliary, who have been holding their annual encampment at that place.

She reports one of the most successful meetings she ever attended.

The officers for next year were installed last night and are as follows:

A. H. Thomas, commander; C. O. Andrews, senior vice-commander; W. J. Lieser, junior vice-commander; C. R. Norton, of Glendale, chaplain; Dr. Hassen, surgeon; members of the council, J. L. Hattery, T. W. Barrett and C. H. Clark, the latter two being from Glendale.

The officers of the Women's Auxiliary were also installed, as follows:

Alice Yount, of Santa Ana, president; Minnie Gibson, of Los Angeles, senior vice-president; Lottie Field, of Riverside, junior vice-president; Helen Barton, of Los Angeles, treasurer; Priscilla Houdyshel, of Glendale, chaplain; members of the council, Allison Thompson, Anna Maxwell, Lida Huntington, Eva Pope and Cora Sackleton.

Robert Searles, of Glendale, was camp bugler, and those from Glendale who enjoyed the ten-day meeting included: Mr. and Mrs. S. Houdyshel, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Norton, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Fuller, T. W. Barrett, Robert Taylor, Thomas Hull, Mrs. Mary Pyle, Mrs. Mary Mulligan, Ada Denny, May Sanford, Della Hapgood, Susie Peck, Jennie phillips and Mayme Pollock.

Thomas Hull Also There

Thomas Hull, of 328 West Colorado street, also arrived at home last night from the encampment. He and Noah W. Hammon and T. W. Barrett stayed through the ten days' meeting, and many other G. A. R. members, women of the Relief Corps and Daughters of Veterans, as well as some members of the Sons of Veterans, Spanish War Veterans and American Legion, went down for brief visits.

There were 717 old soldiers registered, but the total attendance was many thousands.

Many Entertainments

The program was especially good, according to Mr. Hull, and there was some kind of entertainment every night. The ground, said Mr. Hull, is not nearly as suitable as that at Huntington Beach was, as it is a mile from the car lines and hard for strangers to find.

The accommodations were good, he said, the floored tents and beautiful shade being very enticing.

He said there were many inquiries from visitors and veterans about Glendale, both on account of its wonderful growth and because it has the largest G. A. R. post, of over 600 members, and the largest Women's Relief Corps, of more than 1300 members, in the nation. Mr. Hull said he lost no opportunity to boost for the home city.

'BIG TOWN IDEAS' AT THE GLENDALE

There are thrills and laughs galore in "The Big Town Ideas," a William Fox feature on display at the Glendale Theatre today, and in which Eileen Percy one of the most beautiful women of the screen, is provided with one of the most amusing leads ever entrusted to her.

In "Big Town Ideas" Miss Percy, who is cast for the part of a pancake turner at a counter restaurant, is beset with one grand all-consuming ambition—to take off her apron, hang it in the kitchen, and go to New York City to live as a "fine lady."

Her dream is realized, but not until after she becomes involved in a jail delivery at the nearby penitentiary wherein an innocent man is set free, becomes a savior of a whole flock of valuable bonds that have been purloined from their rightful owner, earns a big reward, and finally sets out on her journey to the big city in the company of a handsome youth, brushing rice from his new headgear.

The story of "Big Town Ideas" is quite the fastest and funniest offering that the local screen has been privileged to show.

In addition to "Big Town Ideas" there is being shown today a Century comedy, "On Account," and parts of the latest screen classic Modernized Aesop's Fables. This latter film, which appear in series, is proving to be particularly popular. And it should for it has had 2500 years of advertising.

Sensations

Once my life was a thing of pain;
Worn, down-trodden, I knew the strain
Of labor amid the city's slush:
But now for me is the wind's cool rush
And woods and hedgerows darting by
As in voluptuous curves I fly,
Swinging along like a swallow's flight,
Swooping and swaying, swift and light.
Cool, flower-scented, and clear, the air
Sweeps from a sky that's blue and fair
Below, the ribbon-white road slips past
And I above it, I ride free at last.
Such, I imagine, the feelings are
Of a boot attached to a bridal car.

Strained Music

The organist at Gloucester Cathedral declares that the present vogue of wearing hair over the ears is responsible for a lot of poor singing. His opinion is open to criticism, but it is generally admitted that it would be better if some singers wore the hair over their mouths instead.

TESTED AND PROVEN

IT IS CERTAINLYY a relief to be able to start the electric washing machine on Monday morning, go on about your other work, and come back to find them all just as "clean as a whistle," isn't it? WASHER WILSON of 140 South Brand boulevard, has a dandy new machine, the Mola, which is just suited to your purpose! It is a six-sheet capacity cylinder machine, equipped with just the handiest reversible and swinging wringer, that will lock in five different positions! Of course, you may have it either with or without the gas burner to heat the water. Washer Wilson's prices and terms are much lower than anyone else's—Mola is only $110. And, did you know that all of his machines are tested by the Good Housekeeping Institute? Yes, and proved to be absolutely efficient and perfect in every way! Wouldn't you like to have an electric ironing machine, too? Well, Washer Wilson has just announced a reduction in price on the 42inch electric mangle which he carries—it's down to $120 now! Just think of the labor and the money you might save with such a wonderful convenience!

JUST AS YOU'D IMAGINE IT

It's a perfect love of a place that VANDENHOFF of 205 North Brand boulevard, is offering at only $5500. There are six rooms, one of them an adorable little breakfast room, hardwood floors throughout the house, a garage and a good sized cellar. It's in a dandy location—on Riverdale drive—and Mr. Vandenhoff will sell it for only $500 down—the balance like rent!

IT IS SO CONVENIENT!

JUST BECAUSE your furniture has seen years of service—is no reason why you should allow your home to look antiquated and "shoddy"! At the GLENDALE FURNITURE STORE of 606-608 East Broadway, you can exchange your old pieces for one ones—and pay for the balance on easy terms, too! Their stock is right up-to-the-minute.

A LOVELY EVENING

COULD THERE BE ANYTHING more delightful than the informal dance? A group of gay young people can have a dance at any time by merely "saying the word," as it were, and rolling aside the rugs to form an improvised ballroom, for the Ampico is always ready with the best music, played with the best time and rythm—and all of the brilliance and "pep" that designates the most popular dance music! And it will play on without wearying, for the Ampico is provided with an unusual automatic encore, which, when once set, will repeat indefinitely the piece chosen! THE BARNES-SHUCK MUSIC COMPAY, of 211 North Brand boulevard, are the representatives of the Ampico, in the Knabe, the World's Best Piano! The reproduction of the playing of the truly great artists, expressed through the Ampico with all of the exquisitely beautiful tones of the Knabe—has attained that which is unapproachable! The catalogue of records for the Ampico, which will also be found at Barnes-Shuck's, offers all of the most popular music and musical comedy selections, with the words of the songs printed on the rolls, as well as the rare classics played by the world's greatest artists! Great care is taken in the selection of artists to interpret certain pieces. For example, Godowsky's rendering of Liszt's No. 2 Etude, Ornstein's interpretation of the famous "Liebestraum," are well-known in the musical world. These artists, therefore, have been chosen to interpret these works—and so on, through the entire list of musical compositions.

MR. BOOTH, THE COFFEE KING, 318 East Broadway, his disclosed an interesting secret about coffee making! He says that the chef of a certain French cafe, famous for its unusually good coffee, advocates setting the grounds over the fire before putting into the coffeepot! When the aroma arises from the coffee, it should be taken from the fire and prepared for percolating. But, whatever you do, don't let the coffee burn while heating! They say that by this process the flavor is wonderfully improved. And, speaking of flavors, have you ever tasted any coffee from Booth's? It is simply delicious—always perfectly fresh and pure, for Mr. Booth blends it himself! You would go a long ways before you'd find any coffee that could compare with Booth's Special Blend!

'LESSONS IN LOVE' AT PALACE GRAND

Production of "Lessons in Love," said to be the best Constance Talmadge picture yet made, was temporarily interrupted in New York when the star got married and went on a brief honeymoon.

The picture, which will be the attraction at the Palace Grand Theatre today and tomorrow, was but half finished when the studio was surprised by news of the wedding, and Director Whitney had to wait a week before resuming work with the company.

The ceremony took place at Greenwich, Conn., being performed by a justice of the peace, after which Miss Talmadge left with her husband, John Pialoglou, for a short honeymoon at Atlantic City.

Their honeymoon was of necessity brief, as "Lessons in Love" had to be delivered to Associated First National Pictures, Inc., at an early date, and for that reason the star returned to work on it without any undue delay. And according to Director Withey, she did the very best work of her career.

Mr. Pialoglon is a wealthy New York importer and exporter of cigars and cigarettes. He is 28 years old, tall, dark and handsome. The Pialogous have a suite at a New York hotel.

Following production of "Lessons in Love" and the star's marriage, "Wedding Bells" was very appropriately selected as Miss Talmadge's next vehicle. Her marriage will in no way interfere with her plans for the future, according to announcement from the Talmadge studio, where it was pointed out that recently the Talmadge sisters entered into a contract to make pictures for Associated First National releases for an additional three years.

Most patrons of the Palace Grand are already acquainted with the career of the skipper of the Toonerville trolley. Today and tomorrow, there will be an opportunity to meet the skipper first hand in "The Skipper's Flirtation."

To Be Done With Discretion

"If you want to be really popular with men," says Mr. Arthur Pendenys, "become a widow."

This, of course, may be all right, but few husbands can really learn to love a wife who makes a practice of this sort of thing.

When you feel all shaken up, it is probably flivver complaint.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but becomes weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

HISTORY OF THE BOY SCOUTS

How Movement Began

By General Sir R. Baden-Powell

(I have been asked to set down the original genesis of the movement, so I hope the recurrent ego in the following paragraphs will be forgiven.—R. B.-P.)

In January, 1908, I brought out the handbook of the training, entitled "Scouting for Boys," in six fortnightly parts. A number of troops were started in different parts of the United Kingdom before the series was half completed. Although I had only anticipated that scouting would be taken up as an additional attraction for their boys by the Boys' Brigade and Church Lads' Brigade, it became evident that a separate movement was required to deal with the number of boys who were taking it up unconnected with these bodies. In 1910 the Boy Scout movement had grown to such dimensions (123,930) that I felt it incumbent upon me to leave the Army in order to take the movement in hand. With a view to making the subject appeal to boys and to meet their spirit of adventure, I held up for their ideal the doings of backwoodsmen, knights, adventurers, and explorers as the heroes for them to follow. These I grouped generally under the title "Scouts." Through camp life, boat work, pioneering, and nature study one could find all the attractions for a boy, which at the same time would be the medium of instruction.

THE SCOUT'S HONOR

The Method.—The instruction took the form of active self-expression on the part of the boy, rather than his passive reception of ideas.

The Subjects.—I worked out partly from my own experience and partly from that of others, and from what was lacking in the training of the average school-boy. The deficiency lay chiefly in the direction of:

(1) Character and general intelligence.

(2) Skill in handicrafts.

(3) Physical development and health knowledge.

(4) Service for others and for the State.

The activities and practices of scouting were, therefore, framed as far as possible to develop in (1), (2), and (3) the efficient individual, and then to harness his individuality for the good of the community, i.e., citizenship.

Ideals.—Honor was made the high ideal for the boys. The Scout Law, on which the movement hinges, was taken from the code of the knights.

Administration was decentralized as much as possible, since I had seen how greatly other movements were hampered by over-centralization.

Organization—The troop was purposely kept small in numbers, in order that the Scoutmaster should have personal knowledge of each of his boys, this being the only possible way of developing the character of the individual. We regard forty as the best maximum. The patrol system was adopted from that of the constabulary and for the same reason. An extensive system of badges was instituted, as in the Royal Navy and the Constabulary, for excellence in different branches of work.

The aim of the movement was to make good citizens, and for this reason it was judged unnecessary to introduce military drill.

Scoutcraft is a means through which the veriest hooligan can be brought to higher thought and to the elements of faith in God; and, coupled with the Scout's obligation to do a good turn every day, it gives the base of duty to God and to neighbor, on which the parent or pastor can build with greater ease the form of belief that is desired. I don't think this can be done through "form fours." And that, after all, is the secret of the thing—the spirit of the Brotherhood.

You can dress a lad as a cowboy,
as a Tommy or a Jack,
You can drill him till he looks as smart as paint,
But it does not always follow when you came to scratch his back
That he's really either hero or a saint.

It is the spirit within, not the veneer without, that does it. And the spirit is there in every boy when you get him, only it has to be discovered and brought to light. We reckon on there being 5 per cent of good somewhere in the boy, however bad a hooligan he may be. The Scout's promise to carry out, on his honor, as far as in him lies, the Scout Law is our binding disciplinary force, and with ninety-nine out of a hundred it pays. A mushroom was not in it for rapidity of growth with this movement. Through the United Kingdom the scouting disease caught on, and 'ere long the Dominions had got it, too. Some patriots, anxious for their country's weal, said, "Can't you patent it, so that no rival race can take it up?" "Don't worry," was the reply, "it is too British to appeal to foreigners."

Wrong again! We have for the moment a bare 350,000 British Scouts out of the one and a half millions in training about the world. A curious point about it is that the movement has grown up automatically. King Edward was one of the first of all men to recognize that there was something in this curious impulse. Only two days before his death he was arranging to review the boys. King George carried the intention into effect a few months later, when some 30,000—by far the greatest concourse of boys that had ever assembled—greeted his majesty in Windsor Great Park on that wonderful Fourth of July, 1911. The aims and methods of the movement were inquired into by the Privy Council in 1912, and a Royal Charter of Incorporation was granted as an official recognition.

WORK IN THE WAR

The outbreak of war in 1914 found thousands of Scouts just sallying forth in their little self-contained units, with their trek carts and tents, and the Sea Scouts with their boats and equipment, for their campings in the August holidays. By telegraph the object of their outing was changed; the Land Scouts were mobilized all over the country under the Chief Constables to protect the railway bridges, waterworks, telegraph and cable lines. At the same time Sea Scouts at once took over the duties of watching the coast from the coast guardsmen, who were called up for service afloat; and there they remained till the end of the war, working under the orders of the Admiralty. Some 23,000 boys took their turn at this service. Over 100,000 of the older Scouts and Scoutmasters took their places in his majesty's services, and they have done well. It may be that they have had greater luck than others, but the honors and the praise that have been bestowed upon them have been proportionately remarkably high. Ten thousand of them gave their lives for their country.

Some of our Victoria Cross heroes are Craig, Gates, Dimmer, (also a Boys' Brigade man), Laidlow, Toye, Cruikshank, McKean, Jack Cornwell, well, Dean, Haine, and Hallowes.

Two million men in Britain joined up voluntarily at the beginning of the war. One million could not, largely owing to physical defects from inevitable causes.

Five other millions did not.

"You cannot maintain an A 1 empire on C 3 men," said Mr. Lloyd George, and although he referred mainly to the health of the body, it is equally true regarding the health of mind. The aim of the Scout movement is to develop both, and to help boys towards becoming efficient, happy citizens. The underlying feature is the spirit of the movement, and the key that unlocks this spirit is the romance of woodcraft and Nature lore. Where is there a boy, or, for the matter of that, a grown-up man, even in these materialistic times, to whom the call of the wild and the open road does not appeal? Maybe it is the primitive instinct—anyway, it is there. With that key a great door may be unlocked, if it is only to admit fresh air and sunshine into lives that were otherwise grey. But generally it can do more than this. The heroes of the wild, the frontiersmen and explorers, the rovers of the seas, the airmen of the clouds, are pied pipers to the boys. Where they lead the boys will follow, and these will dance to their tune when the song is of manliness and pluck, of adventure and high endeavor, of efficiency and skill, of cheerful sacrifice of self for others. There's meat in this for the boy; there's soul in it.

Beating swords into plowshares won't make the world entirely safe. There will still be fools who will try to beat trains to a crossing.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Luster With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

WESLEYANS START A NEW MOVEMENT TO DRY ENGLAND

LONDON, Aug. 12. — Simultaneous with the announcement that drunkenness is again on the increase in England comes the news that the Wesleyan churches are about to launch a five years' crusade to make the country dry.

Official figures show that there were 95,763 convictions for drunkenness in England and Wales last year, an increase of 65 per cent over the preceding year. If this rate of increase continues the number of convictions will soon be back at the high mark registered in 1913—188,877. There was a great falling off during the war, due to restrictions on the sale of liquors and to the fact that a large part of the male population was fighting in foreign countries or in training camps.

The Wesleyan churches announce that their drive is to be purely educational and without any sensational features.

"With red-hot enthusiasm," announces the Rev. J. Alfred Sharpe, president of the Wesleyan conference, "we can make the very forces of the devil tremble, even in these days."

The decision to open the campaign was not reached by unanimous vote. The Rev. Sayer Ellis said that, loving liberty, he could not support prohibition.

"We have no right," he cried, "to deny to thousands of decent people the right to drink what they want."

HOOSIER SAND DUNES MOVE

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Indiana's famous sand dunes are moving inland several hundred miles a year.

This startling, though scientific, information was revealed in the Lake County Circuit Court at Crown Point, Ind.. It was said that within the last two weeks several carloads of the dunes had moved inland as far as Davenport, Ia., where they were incorporated in new cement sidewalks.

A temporary order restraining the Great Lakes Sand Company, of Chicago, from removing any more sand from the dunes was asked by the State of Indiana, whose complaint charges the company with taking 1,000,000 cubic yards of sand from the drifts in Lake, Porter and La Porte counties, hindering the natural action of the sand and destorying the beauty of the dunes.

CHAPLAIN OF LEGION URGES MARRIAGE OF VETERANS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 12.—Because he believes that "marriage of the right sort is the best thing that can happen to a worthy ex-service man," the Rev. John W. Inzer, national chaplain of the American Legion, has offered to marry without cost all legion men who visit the third annual national convention of the organization at Kansas City, October 31, November 1 and 2.

The legion chaplain's offer was made in a letter received today by Albert E. Hutchings, convention executive committee chairman. In furtherance of the Rev. Inzer's project, convention officials announced that all expenses for marriage licenses would be paid by the convention executive committee.

The Rev. Inzer, who is pastor of the First Baptist church at Chattanooga, Tenn., explains his offer in the following letter:

"Recently a splendid young ex-service man from an Eastern city came here with his bride to be married by the national chaplain. I call this legion loyalty. The thought has come to some of us that there are a number of fellows who might like to be married at the convention by the national chaplain. It would have a touch of romance about it surely. I shall be glad to perform ceremonies absolutely free of charge for all ex-service men and their brides during the period of the convention. Of course, I would expect anyone who had been divorced to show a Scriptural cause for same.

"I am a firm believer in marriage—one man one wife. A married ex-service man has more to live for—becomes a better citizen and, as a rule, a much better man. As some one has said: 'His sacrifices for his country have made him intensely patriotic and the acquisition of a home and family will eliminate that vague feeling of wanderlust and restlessness which has troubled so many veterans of the World War since their discharge from the service.' It will not bother me to be kept busy half the time if I am marrying real legion lovers to 'the finest little girl in the world.'"

For the Cake and Cookie Box

Cakes made at home, mixed and baked by the housewife herself, are much more appreciated by the family than of those that are bought at the bakery. A box of home-made cookies or small cakes makes a much prized gift and the one who makes and gives them will find a greater pleasure if the gift is the result of her handiwork.

How It Started

"COWBOYS."

THE term "Cowboy" is not, as many think, of origin in the "Wild and wooly West." It was first applied during the American Revolution to a band of Tories who operated around Westchester county, New York, stealing cattle from both parties impartially. The application to the men who herded cattle on the western plains came later, but was derived from the same origin.

BOOZE-LADEN BOAT RUNS GAUNTLET EVERY NIGHT

By W. H. ATKINS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Liquor smuggling is now the real prohibition problem. No single phase of whisky law enforcement rivals smuggling. Its present danger and the potential menace it holds for enforcement over the United States are recognized. Dry officials are alarmed over it, as they are over no other angle of the Volstead law puzzle.

Officials, eager to see law observance throughout the country, now find it impossible, with their limited funds and personnel, to do more than confine their activity to detecting violations on land. Under pressure for economy, prohibition officials have abandoned a programme, tentatively mapped out, for sea patrol, to perform service off the Atlantic coast. Maintaining a sea patrol along the three-mile-limit zones off the coast would involve such a heavy outlay of public funds that higher officials deem it impracticable at this time. With the economy idea spread rapidly through all Government agencies, it is not believed that officials who would be empowered to pass upon such a plan would O. K. a project for a prohibition sea patrol.

The cost of upkeep for an efficient sea patrol, as a part of the prohibition unit of the Treasury, would involve probably $2,000,000 a year at the lowest calculation. The present policy of the Budget Bureau favors a drastic cutting of funds already allowed by Congress for Dry law work rather than any new proposal involving heavier outlays of public funds.

Smugglers Grow Bolder

Treasury officials believe that not more than one out of every 1,000 smugglers are caught coming into the United States. The smugglers are known to be entering coves and inlets, with their valuable cargoes, all along the coasts. Smugglers are growing bolder on the Canadian and Mexican borders. Smuggling operations on the boundaries and coasts have grown upon an amazing scale, as the bootleg importers have gradually become wise to the lack of police opposition.

The stern realities of the smuggling situation are becoming more and more apparent to prohibition officers. They have gone to extremes to check the flow of liquor illicitly from bonded warehouses. They have that end of the problem very well in hand. But the never-ending stream of fine imported whiskies and wines of foreign make that are seeping through thousands of routes of ingress into the United States has brought a new problem that is admittedly baffling.

Three-Mile-Limit Traffic

Liquor ships have a legal right to bring liquor stocks close up to the three-mile limit off American shores. They cannot be stopped or questioned, as long as they do not enter American ports. Large schooners now are being used by bootleg combinations for this purpose. Bootleg promoters maintain fleets of the speediest motor boats, built to transport heavy loads. These motor-boat fleets are darting nightly out from the Atlantic coast to the position of their liquor sources anchored at sea to take in loads and race with them into unfrequented inlets, there to be met by truck caravans to transport the wet stores inland. The big difficulty is in detecting and catching these motor-boat fleets while actual operations are in progress. Their methods are extremely clever. They know the points along the coast that are carefully watched by the Coast Guard. They select as a base of operations points and times for action where opposition from that source is improbable.

Prohibition officials know these tricks of the bootleg importers, but confess themselves powerless. Occasional detection of a liquor ship is reported by Customs or Coast Guard authorities. But these detections are isolated and exceptional. They reveal no reliable safeguard against the continued heavy flow of foreign liquors for the American market, possibly for many years to come.

Great Expectations

"I hear that Jubb's prodigal son came home and said he would be contented to be treated like one of the servants."

"He had all the nerve in the world, didn't he?"

When the bases are full and there are two strikes on the batter and Friend Wife gets excited, she has probably seen a hat in the grandstand that she likes.

Obregon will deserve a high place among diplomats if he can keep both his job and his oil.

Years ago men spoke bitterly of "peticoat government." Women had no political power in those days, but they did wear petticoats.

FORMER WINNERS OF AMERICAN WOMEN'S NATIONAL NET TITLES

California Woman Leaves Her Four Children in Care of "Pop" in Order to Win Tennis Championship for America After Her Long Retirement

By CHARLES E. HUGHES,

International News Service Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 12.—Can a mother who has subordinated tennis to a place of secondary interest in order to care for her home and babies make a successful showing in combat with a girl whose entire life has been concentrated on the game?

Do marriage and motherhood retard a woman's chances in an athletic championship.?

These are questions being asked by the many admirers of Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, who for the past seven years has submerged her identity as a champion tennis player in that of a contented wife and homemaker, and who has answered America's call to return to the courts to help protect the United States title in the tournament at Forest Hills, N. Y., August 15.

France lost a notable victory when Dempsey beat Carpentier, the pugilistic idol. Now she is pinning her faith in her superwoman, Mlle. Lenglen, champion woman tennis player of the world.

Uncle Sam has called on a Southern California woman to uphold American laurels. And that is why the erstwhile champion, happy with her four children and her husband, abandoned her hearth and began training for an appearance against Mlle. Lenglen.

Miss Mary K. Browne, also of California, is another champion to be recalled for "national service" on the American courts this month at the request of the National Amateur Tennis Association.

Mrs. Bundy and Miss Browne have made excellent showings so far in their preliminary work on the New York courts. Their friends here are hopeful that they will be able to reclaim their old-time power and cleverness. To date Miss Browne has shown to the best advantage, having defeated Mrs. Bundy in the New York State championship.

Tom Bundy, husband of the nationally known favorite, who has been "ulaying mother" to Billy, aged eighteen months; Dorothy, aged four years; Nathan, aged give, and Tommy, aged seven, during their mother's absence, believes his wife is taking a sporting chance, with the odds against her.

"Mrs. Bundy has not been in training, despite the games she has played for pleasure during the last seven years," he said. "As any tennis player knows, games for pleasure and playing to win a championship are two different things.

"Tennis is the whole life of Mlle. Lenglen. It is of only secondary interest to my wife, whose time has been taken up raising four strapping youngsters.

"But I am mighty hopeful, for Mrs. Bundy is young, strong and knows the game mighty well. She has a lot of determination to win the championship for America and that's a big factor.

Admiral Sims' love for England is peculiarly annoying to those "typical Americans" who love Germany better.

Nobody, defeated, ever was comforted by somebody's saying, "Well, we can't all win."

No game is finished right 'til thirst is quenched.

Call of New York Lures Western Wife

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—High-spirited women and hick towns are incompatible.

Mary MacLane, of Montana, said so many years ago.

Carol Kennicott, heroine of "Main Street," had an awful time in Gopher Prairie, both with the town and the natives.

Mrs. Clark Durea, minister's wife, of Monticello, N. Y., ran away with another man because, as she said, she couldn't stand life in a small town.

Now here's Mrs. Frances Haskell Niblack, who prefers divorce to life in Oklahoma.

The beautiful and clever daughter of the first Governor of Oklahoma, Charles N. Haskell, could not go back to the husband whose voice called to her from the vast steppes of that region remote from New York State.

Mrs. Niblack, in 1908, married Leslie G. Niblack, army officer. Not till 1917 did she come to look upon the splendor that is conceded to be New York City.

Right then and there something told Mrs. Niblack she never again could go back to the wide fields of the great golden West. No more silos, overalls or oil wells for her.

Wanted No More Oklahoma

The year 1917, which marked the advent of Mrs. Niblack in Gotham, also is memorable as the initial date of the great conflict. The prairie dogs were exchanged for dogs of war. Mrs. Niblack became a nurse and went overseas, as did her husband then become a major.

War ended, the army officer expressed a desire to see his home town. His wife compared it with New York to the serious detriment of the Oklahoma municipality. She asked divorce, grounds cruelty. She lost her case, but her husband won freedom, charging desertion.

Thus does lovely woman spurn unsuitable background for her talents and charm.

Let us look back to the time when Mary MacLane first started to ferment way out in Butte, Mont. At first the startled natives didn't know what her unusual talent for self-expression meant. Some suggested it was madness, a few thought genius. The few were right.

The militant Mary's whole problem was contained in her address, as one of her friends suggested. After "The Story of Mary MacLane" had excited wild comment, much of it unfavorable.

If there was anything the matter with Mary, Butte, Mont., was to blame, so her friends said. Mary was the pioneer enemy of monotonous life.

However, this weird genius is always well able to express bitingly and picturesque—if often tiresomely—her reactions to life, place and circumstances. For instance:

Mary's Morass of Monotony

"I and all other seamstresses and monotonous clerks and lawyers and housewives sit upright in chairs and talk into telephones and walk fast and eat breakfast and brush hair; all the while marooned in a morass of small wild, unexciting, tasteless pain."

Naturally, Mary was none too careful to hide her dislike of Butte and its people, and just as naturally those spurned ones showed their dislike, too. Mary says of them:

"I meet people on the street whom I know, whom I may speak to, whom I may avoid, who may speak to me, who may avoid me, for I am best well-hated in this Butte."

"Paltry," "rude," "dingy,"—these words were used to characterize her home town by the oddly-talented and glad-to-be-misunderstood young woman.

In another sentence she speaks of being as "free as a wildcat on a twilight hill."

Mary MacLane's strongest supporters were always women, and she understood very well the problems of her own sex in the small town.

Ordinary Housewife's Life

"I want to know," explained the weird literary genius, "what the plain, everyday, ordinary housewife endures. I want to show her shut up in her home, with only dull gossip of her neighbors, I want to show her as she is, unable to leave the four walls of her dwelling because of her household duties.

"Imagine the temptations of a woman of that sort, imagine them when she does go out into the world! The husband does not appreciate this, but the wife does. No wonder the divorce courts are kept busy."

The reactions of the author herself were much the same, for she describes her own life thus:

"I rise in the morning, eat three meals, and walk, and work a little; read a little, write, see some uninteresting people; go to bed.

"The next day I rise in the morning, eat three meals, and walk, and work a little; read a little, write; see some uninteresting people; go to bed.

"Truly an exalted, soulful life!"

But there came a time, after some years—Mary had left Butte to visit Chicago, New York and Boston—when the Montana genius wanted to go home to see her people. "The grass blades of the meadows call me," she said.

No Better Second Time

Note "meadows," for such they appeared when she was far away. Upon her arrival home she writes:

"I was curious to test my impressions of Butte after seven years absence. I hoped I might find it more endurable. But, pah! it was the same hideous home of drudging devils and seared scenery that it always was.

"Of course, I missed and longed for my people and my friends, and wished for them time and again. And I often thought of visiting Butte to see them, but one would think of Purgatory in the same way."

Carol Kennicott, in "Main Street," who came to Gopher Prairie as a bride, tried to live according to her own standards, and at the same time endeavored to instil a little taste for them in her townsmen. But she came to grief through her own views. Yet finally she returns to her town and husband, after a taste of life in the effete East, and tries to adapt herself in some measure to the situation.

The monotony of life in small, remote places and the triviality of it is appalling to many women.

Mrs. Lucy Ostrum, of Monticello, N. Y., whose son-in-law, Earl Vernooy, ran away with the wife of Clark Durea, an unordained minister of the Church of Holiness, is quoted as saying:

"The small town is the cause of all the trouble. All the meanness and sneakiness that goes on in a little place like this you can't imagine. If I had a son to bring up I would move to the corner of Forty-second street and Broadway among the bright lights!"

Mrs. Emily Durea, wife of the minister, expressed her own dissatisfaction at the emptiness of her small-town existence and said she simply had to get away. But after a few days' absence she begged to be taken back and was refused.

Mary MacLane went back only to be disgusted again. Carol Kennicott went home, resigned and determined somehow to make the best of things Mrs. Durea tried to go back.

Will Mrs. Frances Haskell Niblack ever tire of this city and other vantage points in the wide, wide world and wish to return to Oklahoma?

It all seems to be in the point of view, anyway, all a question of taste.

Mary herself once said of contentment:

"Content is my rarest emotion and I get it at midnight out of a boiled potato!"

Degenerate Times

It is remarked that the number of deaths of celebrated men this year has been exceptionally low. This suggests to us also that not a single birth of any famous person has been recorded during the last twelve months.

HARDING'S DOUBLE

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 12.—A replica of the President of the United States in personal appearance is Captain A. F. Johnson, commanding the ocean steamship City of St. Louis, plying between Savannah and Boston. In citizen's attire Captain Johnson resembles more closely President Harding than when the skipper is wearing the steamship uniform. Captain Johnson is about the age of the President and is a Republican.

CARRIES ELECTION FOR ANNEXATION

A characteristic communication from Attorney P. S. McNutt conveyed to council members at their meeting last night, news of the result of the latest election for the annexation of the Sierra district to the city of Glendale. The vote as reported, and subsequently confirmed, was 18 in favor and 6 against.

Mayor Robinson asked why they didn't make it unanimous. William Pelley, in response, said they had tried to do so, but were well pleased to have carried it, anyway.

"We welcome the representatives of the district to our beautiful city," declared the mayor, with a graceful gesture appropriate to the sentiment.

"And," supplemented Councilman Lapham, "our tax collector will be around next week," which drew laughter and applause.

The election returns will be canvassed at the next meeting of the council.

Opposing Points of View

THE BEST FAIR EVER HELD

The coming San Fernando Valley Fair, to be held at San Fernando from September 13 to 18, will be the greatest event of the kind ever held in this section, and it bids fair to surpass any fair ever held in Southern California. During the past two weeks The Daily Press has devoted a great deal of space setting forth the special features of the fair, and we are assured that the information given does not exaggerate the facts in the least. Glendale will have a large and varied exhibit at this fair, which will prove a big advertisement for our city—the fastest-growing city in the United States. By all means set aside one or more days to attend the fair, and don't forget to boost it wherever you have the opportunity. The following are among the live business men behind the San Fernando Valley Fair and have contributed this space toward advertising the fair.
